"... In turns lusty and witty and delicate, these poems offer themselves as "...fiery fruit/hanging on a stark black branch/...ready for harvest."—Paulann Petersen, Oregon Poet Laureate

"... I cherish these poems. Stenson's eye and concern of the intimate other is to be admired."—Carl Adamshick, Winner of the Walt Whitman Award and the Oregon Book Award

BY LEAH STENSON

TAKE A STROLL IN THE BACKYARD (weather permitting), grab a bite to eat and libations to drink, and hear Leah read some love poems from her latest book accompanied by music from Daniel Crothers and Stacey Minkoff.

IN ADDITION TO POETRY CHAPBOOKS AND ANTHOLOGIES, Leah has published essays, editorials, and feature articles. She currently serves on the board of Friends of William Stafford and hosts the Studio Series, a monthly poetry reading and open mic at Stonehenge Studio in SW Portland.

STACEY MINKOFF has loved the violin and performed on it for most of her life. Besides her more classical instruments, she has also played the mandolin and classical baritone ukulele for the last nine years.

DANIEL CROTHERS is a professional soundtrack composer for movies and documentaries.
